October 21, 2012

Applications are being accepted for the 4-H Task Force.

The group will be selected to study and review options that will address outdoor education, animal science programs and natural resources education.

The recent sale of the Langley Bell Center 4-H property marks a transformation for UF/IFAS 4-H Youth Development Program in Escambia County. On May 3, a memorandum of understanding (MOU) between the Escambia County Board of Commissioners, the University of Florida IFAS Extension and the Escambia County 4-H Foundation was approved by the county commission. The MOU is a legal binding contract and serves as the blueprint of the immediate goals for the local 4-H program.

Information about the application process, the application form and job description can be found at the Escambia County Extension website: <http://escambia.ifas.ufl.edu>. The deadline for submitting applications is Friday, October 26, at 4:30 p.m.
